

HISTORY OF CHICKEN COMERS

Chicken Comer's BBQ became famous in 1929, during the Great Depression. Anderson "Uncle Chicken" Comer, Sr. started this barbeque legacy out of a house in Phenix City, AL. Many patrons lined up to get a taste of sauce that was so good; they didn't mind it being drizzled over the barbecue with a mop.

For more than 70 years, the original diner served as a barbecue institution to many. Upon the death of "Uncle Chicken," his great-niece Mary Screws and her family carried on the legendary tradition by operating a version of the BBQ joint until 2002.

The restaurant is currently owned by Terry Bussey, and operated at a new location in Columbus, GA.
